22% of Coffee Drinkers on the Go Visit a Convenience Store

Toledo, Ohio, (PRWEB) November 17, 2009 – 22% of consumers stop at a convenience store when looking for a cup on the go reveals RitterAssociates™, the company that helps build and measure great customer experiences, in latest study of coffee drinking preferences.

According to the survey, more than half of coffee drinking occasions take place outside of the home, and taste is the number one deciding factor followed by value and convenience. “We Americans still like a cup of coffee to keep us on the go even in uncertain economic times,” said Stanley Gene Hart, president of Toledo-based RitterAssociates. “We want a good-tasting cup of coffee wherever we buy it.”

RitterAssociates is hosting a free webinar on November 19, 2009 at 2:00 p.m. EST to share study insights through a live webinar that includes a question/answer session.

The survey findings also include what types of stores consumers visit to buy their coffee and the price points they typically pay, as well as demographics based on age and gender. For the study, over 18,000 men and women were invited to participate representing nearly all corners of the United States. Respondents were categorized by the number of times they typically drink coffee in a week – frequent users 5-7 times, moderate users 3-4 times, and light users 1-2 times.

Join RitterAssociates on Thursday, November 19, 2009 at 2:00 EST for this free webinar disclosing the full results of the survey findings.
